

National Research Repository
Title of project	Rethinking Multiculturalism/Reassessing Multicultural Education
Title of report	Rethinking Multiculturalism Reassessing Multicultural Education: Project Report Number 1 Surveying NSW Public School Teachers
Author(s)	Megan Watkins, Garth Lean, Greg Noble, Kevin Dunn
Organisation(s)	(Then) University of Western Sydney NSW Department of Education and Communities (DEC) NSW Institute of Teachers Australian Research Council
HREC Approval Number	H8916
Date of publication	2013
Jurisdictions	NSW
Area of research (key words)	Multiculturalism, multicultural education
Abstract of report	This report documents the findings of a 2011 survey of permanent executive and teaching staff in NSW public schools. With a sample of over 5,000 DEC teachers from across the state, the survey provides a rich source of data on attitudes and understandings about multicultural education and multiculturalism more broadly. Key findings relate to the cultural make-up of the NSW teaching population, understandings and attitudes regarding policies and practices of multicultural education, levels of training around multicultural education, ESL and anti-racism and their effectiveness.
Link to report (if available)	http://www.uws.edu.au/_data/assets/pdf_file/0016/542212/RMRME_Report_1.pdf
Copy of report (if no link)
Link to researcher email	m.watkins@westernsydney.edu.au
Link to project website	http://www.multiculturaleducation.edu.au/
Implications for education jurisdictions and schools	The findings of the report have implications for policies of multicultural education and anti-racism and also initial and inservice teacher training in these areas.